BusterSci I'll be packing and driving most of the morning after Frau wakes up. I will update the curious: it was a female merganser. After talking to a wildlife rescue person, we used my fishing net to slide into the fireplace door and capture her. Then used one of Ripley's blankets to wrap her so she couldn't flap and got her outside onto the deck. I turned the net to expose her and she sat for a few seconds and that's when we were able to see the red-brown crest through the ash which allowed identification. She then ran across the deck, under the railing, launched as if from a carrier, and flew a straight flight path down to the water. We were very pleased.

Joanna in Virginia Speaking of birds...a Killdeer created a nest in the gravel in front of another boarder's horse trailer. On Monday, she was trying to hook up her trailer, but couldn't access the hitch without running over the nest - she was distraught, as was Momma Killdeer. She asked for help, so I created another nest, in a close but safe location, and relocated the eggs. I felt awful for moving the eggs, but knew this was the only way they would survive. The gal hitched up her trailer and left and I hung back at a distance and was happy to see Momma find her nest's new location and covered her eggs.

Charlie in Tenn If you run a competition it is better to give away more prizes than less. The winners get publicity and want to return the next year. Example - My small college had a homecoming parade. We gave out trophies to winning bands that attended. Since this was re-starting of bands coming we only had 8 - 10. We gave away 1st place trophies to almost every band. Best Music, Best Marching, Best overall, Best High school, Best middle School, Best Uniforms, Etc. None of the kids or Directors cared that there were no real competition for the awards.

Tim in KY Foggy now.

05-22-2024
10:22:37 am

Katie S (i can't imagine pulling on a rain vest going uphill on a wet road)

05-22-2024
10:22:56 am

RocketCityGal They keep talking about the leader of the KOM as if these guys are ahead in that competition. . The leader of the KOM jersey is Pogacar, and there's really no chance of anyone else getting it at this point. They might get to wear the jersey, but they're not winning the competition.

05-22-2024
10:23:51 am

RocketCityGal Katie, I can't imagine pulling on a rain jacket while riding a bike, in ANY circumstance.

05-22-2024
10:25:10 am

Tim in KY Final climb starts with 11.8 km to go.

05-22-2024
10:25:42 am

RocketCityGal I was staff on Bike Virginia long ago (when it was still a good multiday ride); a woman doing the ride lost control when she was pulling off a jacket while riding, crashed and broke her scapula.

05-22-2024
10:27:06 am

SFinAus I would suppose Pog will go again. Pog gotta be Pog, I think

10:46:57 am

PasadenaK8 Yikes! Nathan has quite the race career ending story! Nathan Van Hooydonck has reflected on the moment his career ended for the first time after doctors discovered a heart muscle anomaly and fitted the Belgian with an internal defibrillator (ICD) to correct potential future cardiac arrhythmia. The Jumbo-Visma rider came close to death when the heart issue caused him to lose control of his car and crash into five other vehicles at a junction with his pregnant wife, Alicia, also in the car, but after being placed into a medically induced coma at Antwerp Hospital, thankfully survived the incident.â€œ
